

U.S. Embassy – Abidjan, Cote d'Ivoire
Warden Message – Contingency Planning

December 8, 2010

The State Department continues to advise U.S. citizens outside of the country to defer travel to Cote d'Ivoire. The U.S. Embassy in Abidjan urges U.S. citizens living in Cote d'Ivoire to consider their own personal security and contingency plans, including temporary departure from Cote d'Ivoire. The consular section continues to receive inquiries from U.S. citizens asking what kind of assistance the Embassy can provide. For your ready reference we are repeating the information provided by the U.S. Embassy at the U.S. Citizen Town Hall Meeting on October 28, 2010, along with some additional information, which can also be found on the main page of the U.S. Embassy Website: <http://abidjan.usembassy.gov/>.

As the International Community, including the United States, continues to increase pressure on the Gbagbo regime to step down peacefully, the U.S. Embassy cannot rule out the possibility that U.S. citizens might get caught up in a potential conflict between those loyal to the incumbent and those loyal to the opposition candidate. Corporations and NGOs, as well as the United Nations and the World Bank, have temporarily relocated employees to other countries or drawn down to essential personnel. The U.S. Embassy along with other foreign embassies have suggested that their employees or citizens go on holiday travel early in order to remain safe while the political situation remains unresolved and may further deteriorate. The U.S. Embassy is reviewing its security posture and asks private citizens to do the same.
